WWA1108 Brian Mills, April 2024 Screenshot Competition Winner!

New Look?

A bit of a different look this month. Our editor is out sick and we are doing our best to fill in. We hope all will be back to normal soon, and our best wishes to Chris Cramblett WWA 3592 for a speedy return. The screenshots in this issue are all honoring monthly screenshot competition winners after the previous newsletter was published.

Instrument Currency

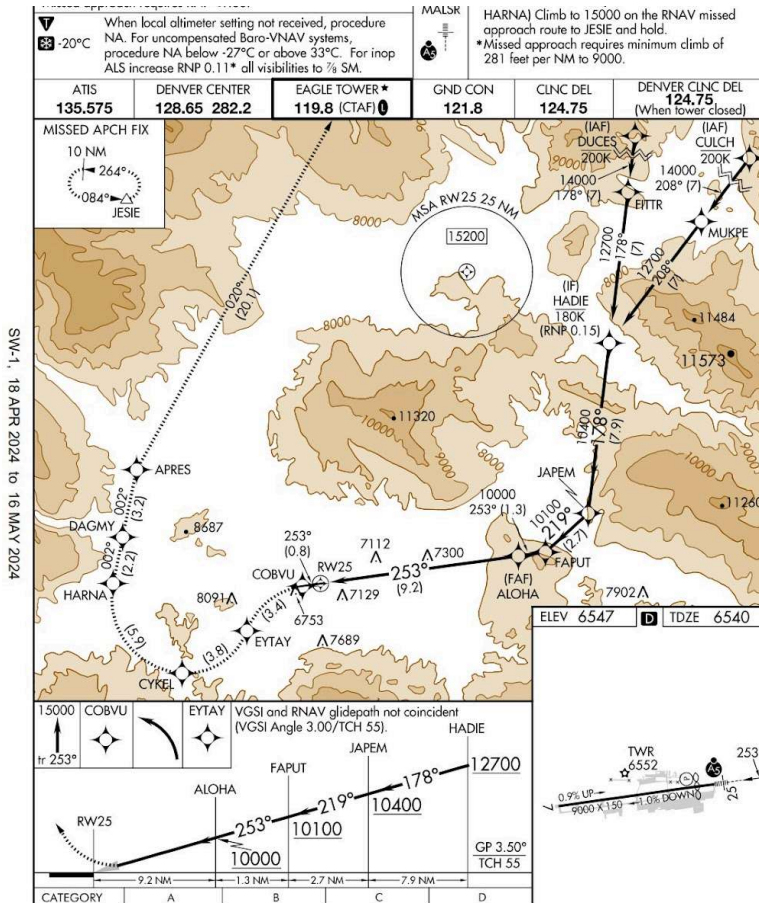

This month make sure your instrument skills are up to approach speed at the training center in Denver. Hop into one of our business jets and set your simulator visibility to 1 mile and put in an overcast cloud layer from 7500 to 10000 feet MSL. If you want some winds try a layer at 8,000 feet of 300 at 15 and another at 15,000 feet of 320 at 25.

Your flight plan will be a full stop at KEGE in Eagle, Colorado, planning for the RNAV Z RWY 25 approach, then back to Denver for two ILS approaches. On the first approach into Denver, fly a missed approach with the full procedure.

Screenshots are appreciated! And if you do the training on VATSIM, be sure to let the controller know you are using custom weather and your preferred approach.
